Inspired by the French pointillist Georges Seurat's painting A Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grande Jatte, Stephen Sondheim's 1984 landmark musical Sunday in the Park with George focuses on George, a fictionalized version of Seurat, who "immerses himself deeply in painting his masterpiece, and his great-grandson (also named George), a conflicted and cynical contemporary artist."

In this moment of the show, Seurat seems to be coming to terms with the departure of Dot, the woman in his life, while continuing his obsessive work on a painting, prioritizing the creation of art over the building of relationships. He seems to prefer his imaginary, artificial world, over the real world and takes great joy in "Finishing the Hat." Listen to Mandy Patinkin sing this in the original Broadway production.

4 Places to Safari in the U.S.

For many of us, a safari is high up on our bucket lists. In our minds, we picture vast swathes of savannah whose gently swaying grass and fragile acacia trees form the habitat of some of the world's most captivating species. But what if you don't have the cash – or the time – to fly halfway around the world in pursuit of the perfect safari? Well, the good news is you don't have to miss out. Here are four places where you can safari without leaving the U.S.
