Seasonal High Tides Expected to Start This Week

Day/Time	Elevation in Feet (MLLW)
Friday, November 13, 9:29 a.m.	6.5
Saturday, November 14, 10:06 a.m.	6.7
Sunday, November 15, 10:44 a.m.	6.9
Monday, November 16, 11:26 a.m.	6.9
Tuesday, November 17, 12:10 p.m.	6.7
Wednesday, November 18, 12:58 p.m.	6.4

High tides often cause flooding along shoreline communities and low-lying roadways of Marin County, which can be exacerbated during winter storms. But tide-related flooding can happen whether it's raining or not. Such inconveniences are likely to occur over the next few months and may begin as soon as Friday, November 13.

The entrance to the Manzanita Park & Ride Lot in southern Marin is one of the areas that typically floods during king tides, drastically affecting traffic flow.

"High tides can bring localized flooding to coastal areas, such as Tam Junction, even on sunny days," said Roger Leventhal, Senior Civil Engineer for the Marin County Department of Public Works (DPW). "However, when coupled with a significant storm, these predicted high tides could increase impact to various areas of Marin where signs of sea level rise are already causing year-round tidal flooding issues."

DPW and the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District are urging residents and visitors to stay informed of changing weather conditions this winter and be aware of the seasonal high tides that have been predicted.

THESE ARE SOME OF THE GREATEST ALBUMS OF ALL TIME

Search where your favorite albums stack up in our Rolling Stone's 500 Greatest Albums of All Time. Rolling Stone’s list was originally published in 2003, with a slight update in 2012. Over the years, it’s been the most widely read — and argued over — feature in the history of the magazine. But no list is definitive — tastes change, new genres emerge, the history of music keeps being rewritten.
