The 6 Most Incredible Beaches In National Parks

When you think of national parks, you're probably thinking of looming mountains, tufts of evergreen trees, and wide-open valleys. Often, the beaches within national parks are left only for those who know where to look.

The coronavirus vaccine wasn't the only amazing discovery: A look at all the ways science thrived in 2020

In 2020, incredible scientific discoveries didn't stop because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

First and foremost was the phenomenal work done by scientists to study the disease and develop vaccines in record time to put the brakes on the global pandemic. It was a truly Herculean effort by literally thousands of scientists around the world.

Otherwise, while nothing can compare to the vaccine effort for impact, we discovered there could be water on the sunlit surface of the moon, potentially life on Venus, "Marsquakes" on Mars, and the chance that dozens of intelligent civilizations could be scattered across our Milky Way galaxy.

Four-month-old ravens could be as intelligent as adult apes

By four months old, the cognitive performance of ravens may be similar to that of adult great apes, a study suggests.

The birds' performance in experimental tasks testing their understanding of the physical world and how they interact with other ravens was analysed by researchers. They tested the cognitive skills of eight hand-raised ravens at 4, 8, 12 and 16 months of age using a series of experiments.
